1 Positions and Functions of Adjectives

1) Before a noun

1. S + be + (adv) + adj + N
2. V ... + adv + adv
3. adv + V / V + adv
4. adv, S + V

An adjective comes before a noun and describes the noun in different ways, e.g. a tall boy, a handsome boy, a smart boy, a stupid boy, a lazy boy, a humorous boy.

O

Example We are seeking _____ individuals to participate in those outdoor activities.

(A) interest (B) interested (C) interestingly

2) After be

chỉ trạng thái

An adjective comes after be and explains the state of the subject in the pattern [Subject + be + Adjective].

Example The company's profits were _____ enough to attract potential investors.

(A) impress (B) impression (C) impressive

adj + enough + to V
enough + N

3) After linking verbs

sau động từ liên kết - chỉ trạng thái

vẫn còn / duy trì

These verbs are used in the same position as be, such as get, become, remain, seem, and look.

- become/get + adjective
  Workers will become accustomed to operating the machine.
- remain + adjective
  The entire building remains unoccupied right now.

Example The tourists looked _____ after the tour of the province.

(A) tire (B) tired (C) tirement

v: mệt mỏi adj

4) After the verbs make, keep, find to function as an object complement

Make, keep, and find are the verbs used in Pattern 5 in Day 1.

Subject + Verb (make, keep, find) + Object + Object Complement
The adjective explains the state of the object

- make
  His speech made the audience encouraged.
- keep
  Please keep the schedule posted on the bulletin board.
- find
  I find his music impressive.

Adverbs are not a compulsory element in a sentence. However, as they are used to modify a verb, an adjective, another adverb, a prepositional phrase or even a clause, proper use of adverbs is a good indication of one's English proficiency level. That is why test items of adverb occur frequently in the TOEIC test.

1 Positions and Functions of Adverbs

1) At the end of a sentence to modify another adverb

Adverbs can be used one after another in the structure [Adverb + Adverb], e.g. easily understandably in This book is written easily understandably.

Example The president made a presentation very _____ at the annual conference.

(A) hesitate (B) hesitant (C) ~~hesitantly~~

make + O + adj

2) Before an adjective to modify it

Subject + be + Adverb + Adjective	He is very kind.
Adverb + Adjective + Noun	a very kind man

Example Mr. Parker is a _____ efficient employee in the human resources division.

(A) high adj / adv (B) highly = very adv (C) height n

3) Before a verb to modify it

An adverb can come before a verb to modify it in the structure [Subject + Adverb + Verb], e.g. It will probably rain tomorrow.

Example The doctor _____ recommended the healthy diet to the patient.

(A) strong (B) strength (C) strongly

4) Before or after a past participle to modify it in the passive voice structure

An adverb can come before or after a past participle in the passive voice structure [be + past participle + Adverb] or [be + Adverb + past participle].

This project was finally finished. = This project was finished finally.
adverb past participle past participle adverb

Example Compared to last quarter's, the profits were reduced _____.

(A) ~~substantially~~ considerably (B) substantial (C) substance

5) At the beginning of a sentence to modify the whole sentence

Normally, when you see a blank followed by a comma (,) in front of the subject of a sentence, that blank is very probably for an adverb to modify the whole sentence.

Example _____, our company didn't get the contract for some reason.

(A) Unfortune (B) Unfortunately (C) Unfortunate

2 Confusable Adverbs

Some adverbs have two forms – with -ly and without -ly – with different meanings. Some without -ly are also used as adjectives sometimes. Familiarize yourself with a few of them as provided in this table below.

Adverbs with Different Forms and Meanings
