UNIT 3: ADJECTIVES AND ADVERBS

đặc điểm phẩm chất

Adjectives are used to modify or explain the characteristics, qualities, states, forms, and magnitude of nouns. They can act as a complement in a sentence, e.g. the wind is cool, the joke is flat, or as a modifier of a noun, e.g. a cool wind, a flat joke.

1 Positions and Functions of Adjectives

1) Before a noun

An adjective comes before a noun and describes the noun in different ways, e.g. a tall boy, a handsome boy, a smart boy, a stupid boy, a lazy boy, a humorous boy.

Example We are seeking _____ individuals to participate in those outdoor activities.
(A) interest (B) interested (C) interestingly

2) After be

An adjective comes after be and explains the state of the subject in the pattern [Subject + be + Adjective].

Example The company's profits were _____ enough to attract potential investors.
(A) impress (B) impression (C) impressive

3) After linking verbs

sau động từ liên kết

These verbs are used in the same position as be, such as get, become, remain, seem, and look.

- become/get + adjective
  Workers will become accustomed to operating the machine.
- remain + adjective
  The entire building remains unoccupied right now.
- seem/look + adjective
  The election seems fair to me, but nobody else thinks so.

Example The tourists looked _____ after the tour of the province.
(A) tire (B) tired (C) tirement

4) After the verbs make, keep, find to function as an object complement

Make, keep, and find are the verbs used in Pattern 5 in Day 1.

Subject + Verb (make, keep, find) + Object + Object Complement
The adjective explains the state of the object

- make
  His speech made the audience encouraged.
- keep
  Please keep the schedule posted on the bulletin board.
- find
  I find his music impressive.

Adverbs are not a compulsory element in a sentence. However, as they are used to modify a verb, an adjective, another adverb, a prepositional phrase or even a clause, proper use of adverbs is a good indication of one's English proficiency level. That is why test items of adverb occur frequently in the TOEIC test.

1 Positions and Functions of Adverbs

1) At the end of a sentence to modify another adverb

Adverbs can be used one after another in the structure [Adverb + Adverb], e.g. easily understandably in This book is written easily understandably.

Example The president made a presentation very _____ at the annual conference.
(A) hesitate (B) hesitant (C) hesitantly

2) Before an adjective to modify it

Subject + be + Adverb + Adjective	He is very kind.
Adverb + Adjective + Noun	a very kind man

Example Mr. Parker is a _____ efficient employee in the human resources division.
(A) high (B) highly (C) height

3) Before a verb to modify it

An adverb can come before a verb to modify it in the structure [Subject + Adverb + Verb], e.g. It will probably rain tomorrow.

Example The doctor _____ recommended the healthy diet to the patient.
(A) strong (B) strength (C) strongly

4) Before or after a past participle to modify it in the passive voice structure

An adverb can come before or after a past participle in the passive voice structure [be + past participle + Adverb] or [be + Adverb + past participle].

This project was finally finished. = This project was finished finally.
adverb past participle past participle adverb

Example Compared to last quarter's, the profits were reduced _____.
(A) substantially (B) substantial (C) substance

5) At the beginning of a sentence to modify the whole sentence

Normally, when you see a blank followed by a comma (,) in front of the subject of a sentence, that blank is very probably for an adverb to modify the whole sentence.

Example _____, our company didn't get the contract for some reason.
(A) Unfortune (B) Unfortunately (C) Unfortunate

2 Confusable Adverbs

Dear Mr. Gosnell,

Below are some preliminary conclusions and recommendations based on our analysis of the design of the Brookside Visitors Bureau Web site.

First, the site is not as ------- 143. as it should be. We recommend updating its appearance and adding information that meets the demands of today's tourists. Note also that your organization's logo is not used consistently ------- 144. your Web site.

You should also consider supplementing the imagery used to promote the city. ------- 145. . We therefore recommend uploading some professionally made videos featuring the various attractions Brookside has to offer. ------- 146. , we suggest adding a page to the Web site that allows residents and visitors to upload their own photos and videos of city attractions.

Please contact me at your earliest convenience to discuss the next steps.

Best regards,

Shelly Luu
